

Palestine Exploration Fund Annuals

SERIES
RELAUNCH

After a gap of 53 years, the Palestine Exploration Fund Annual, first published in 1911, has been re-launched in order to provide a vehicle for more extended studies of the Levant. In line with the original intentions of the series, volumes include reports of excavations and surveys undertaken or supported by the Fund, but, in addition, they reflect the full range of the Fund's interests by including a wide variety of archaeological, historical, geographical and ethnographic studies.

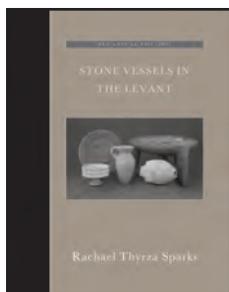

The Hellenistic Paintings of Marisa (PEF Annual VII) David M Jacobson

To mark the centenary of the discovery of the painted tombs, David Jacobson offers a reassessment of the Marisa paintings to accompany a facsimile of the original 1905 publication, now long out of print. The new study examines the religious, cultural and historical significance of the paintings, and also recounts the careers of Peters and Thiersch. This new publication includes, for the first time, the original photographs taken by Raad in 1902, which reveal the fine quality of these ancient works of art.
